

Abstract of the Invention

A method and composition for preventing the formation of lesions in a patient having a site of inflammation by the use of a cromolyn compound. The cromolyn compound is used with a composition containing penetrating aids.